DEFENSE DAY IS OBSERVED OVER NATION

Patriotic Demonstrations, Parades Today.

KENTUCKY IN LINE

First Test of National Fighting Fighting Machinery Put In Motion—National Guards Called Out.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12—The nation's defense machinery, intended for actual use only in a war emergency, was given the first test today, accompanied by patriotic demonstrations in every part of the United States and its possessions.

One hundred thousand national guardsmen in the Middle Western states participated in parades. Sham battles were fought at Yankton, S. D., and Evansville, Ind. The Pacific fleet attacked at San Francisco where the land forces offered defense.

Governor Blaine, of Wisconsin, threatened to deprive the national guard of their commissions if the guardsmen were called out there but the state observed the day with patriotic rallies.

NOTED GOLFERS AT FRENCH LICK

Hagen, Sarazen and Other Stars of the Greens to Play on September 15th.

Associated Press.

FRENCH LICK SPRINGS, Ind., Sept. 12—The course over which the Professional Golfers Association championship will be played here September 15 to 20, will demand top form for good scores, according to Arthur Lockwood, club professional.

The course is long and difficult, with a wealth of hills and hollows and more than 100 wide and deep traps. The elevated putting greens prove most deceiving in distance. Donald Ross, famous builder of golf courses, laid out the French Lick links and declares it to be his masterpiece. It is similar to Oakland Hills, where Cyril Walker won the American open.

Walker, Walter Hagen, just back from England with the British Championship; Gene Sarazen, Jock Hutchinson, McDonald Smith, Joe Kirkwood, Freddie McLeod and a host of other stars are expected to participate in the French Lick event for a purse of $5,000.

Sixty-four starters will tee off Monday September 15, in pursuit of the title now held by Gene Sarazen. The men taking the low 32 scores will be paired for the match play eliminations which start Tuesday. The 32 men eliminated on Monday will each receive $50; those on Tuesday $75, those on Thursday $125 and those on Friday, the day of the semi-finals, $125.

FIELDS ANNOUNCES CONSTITUTION DAY

Chief Executive Proclaims September 17th as "Constitution Week."

Associated Press.

FRANKFORT, Sept. 12—Gov. Fields today proclaimed Wednesday, September 17, Constitution Day, a day for the reading of the constitution from preamble to the nineteenth amendment. His proclamation read:

'One hundred and thirty-seven years ago, a small group of master statesmen gathered in the city of brotherly love and drafted one of the four greatest documents ever conceived by the minds of men—that title deed to freedom, the Constitution of the United States of America.

"Comparatively brief, every sentence of vast import and laden with meaning, it has come to be little less than a standard of measurement for all the liberty-loving people of the civilized world. Its lofty purpose, so clearly and forcefully expressed in the preamble, forever commends this immortal document to every lover of justice, every friend of freedom, and every ally of peace.

"Though written more than a century ago, its flexibility bears convincing evidence of the breadth of vision, the keen insight and foresight, the indomitable courage and wisdom of its authors, who wrought well not only for their own generation but for multitudes yet unborn. True, the exigencies of varying conditions and changing situations have rendered nineteen amendments necessary, yet the great principles of truth, of justice, of equity and liberty that bind us in indissoluble union are, and we trust will forever remain unaltered and unchanged.

"With the sincere desire to awaken our people to a more profound respect, a deeper sense of appreciation and more hallowed reverence for this matchless document and its real meaning, I, William J. Fields, governor of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, do hereby set aside and proclaim Wednesday, September 17th as Constitution Day. I most earnestly and urgently request that every citizen of our state observe the day in an appropriate manner.

"In grateful recognition of the goodly heritage that is ours bequeathed us by our fathers, let us on this day read and reflect upon its every article, from the preamble to the nineteenth amendment. Let us pledge anew our firm allegience our unwavering devotion and our loyal obedience to its lofty principles and rekindle on our every hearthstone the altar fires of freedom."

The Constitution, the Declaration of Independence, the Magna Charter, and the English Bill of Rights, the governor termed the "four greatest documents ever conceived by minds of men."

Weeds Are Being Cut Along Banks Canal

The appearance of the banks in not only enhanced by the removal of the tall weeds, small trees and other growths but flood conditions will be lessened by the absence of the weeds which would retard the waters during heavy rains.

SUN YAT SEN PARTY STATES ITS POLICIES

Faction Reiterates Its Pro-Foreign Policies.

FOES TO ALIENS

Dr. Wu Says People are Ostensibly Servile, Though Really Are Averse to Foreigners.

CANTON, China, Sept. 12.—The Kuomintang, the party of Dr. Sun Yat-sen, president of the south China republic, took advantage of the recent strike of house boys at Shameen, the foreign settlement of Canton, to reiterate the party's pro-foreign policy. In a statement given out by Dr. C. C. Wu, son of the late Wu Ting-fang, one time minister to Washington, the Kuomintang refuses to entertain an alleged proposal of certain Shanghai members of the party to rescind the party's order refraining from anti-foreignism.

A new and stronger order was in fact issued. This reads: "It is the duty of this party to make China a really independent and sovereign state on the basis of the party's three principles. It regards all narrow and violent anti-foreign sentiments as harmful to society and the world at large, and detrimental to the complete independence and equality of the Chinese state and race. For this reason the party has always strenly exerted itself in suppressing such tendencies."

The pronouncement asserts that even during the Boxer uprising of 1900, when the Manchus were encouraging the Boxers in their "insane movement to destroy the foreigner" the Kuomintang, which had started a revolution at Wuchow, accorded protection to foreign life and property. Since then the revolutionaries, whenever they took up arms, never failed to take special care to give adequate protection to foreigners.

The northern militarists on the other hand, Dr. Wu's statement continues, "having usurped the Peking government, have not hesitated to work in league with the imperialistic powers, and to sell the country in order to further their selfish aims. Our people have often denounced their slavishness towards foreign powers, but the minds of the militarists and reactionaries are really suffused with medieval and monarchial notions and superstitions which are closely associated with anti-foreign sentiments. While in their conduct they are servile, in their mentality they are really hostile to foreigners.

STATE TO VOTE ON AMENDMENT

Larger Salaries Superintendents Possible by Constitutional Change.

Associated Press.

FRANKFORT, Sept. 12—Kentuckians will not only vote in November on the question of approval or disapproval of the bond issue but will also either ratify or reject another constitutional amendment.

They will decide whether to lift the $5,000 annual salary limitation imposed on judges of the Court of Appeals and the city school superintendent and high school principals of Louisville.

The act, amending the constitution, and making it legal for these officials to receive more than $5,000, before its passage by the 1920 general assembly, brought explanation from Sen. William M. Duffy, Louisville, its author, that Louisville has been unable to keep its city superintendents in office thru offers elsewhere of greater financial reward.

He and several other assemblymen also detailed the hours daily put in by appellate judges here in the capitol building.

No opposition to the proposed amendment was presented.

STATE GUARD MORE USEFUL THAN OTHERS

Is Used Three Times More Than Other Guard Units.

WANTS AIR FORCE

General Kehoe Makes Laudatory Address on National Guard on National Defense Day.

Associated Press

FRANKFORT, Ky., Sept. 12—Kentucky's National Guard troops are used just three times as much as any other state's troops in the Union, Adjutant General James A. Kehoe said today, National Defense Day.

One strike in Kentucky cost the Commonwealth just $800,000, he said, adding that "the actual administration of Kentucky's soldiers costs very little."

"With 3,000 soldiers it cost the state $35,000 last year," he said.

"We have a Kentucky temperament and are perhaps proud of it but when any disturbance is about to be hatched, just pause and consider for it takes about $1,000 a day to keep any size military unit on active duty."

The necessity for army forces was pointed to. He said the country needs the military as much as communities need fire departments and policemen.

"If we are to be without suitable protection in event of an emergency then I am in favor of a law paying firemen only when there is a fire, policemen only when they catch a lawbreaker and the sheriff only when he catches a bootlegger," he said.

The regular army is "like a one-legged-man at a square dance with the other leg broken; he has about all he can do just doing nothing," he said.

"The federal government has spent four and a half million dollars on the Kentucky National guard and it is now annually spending a half million additional and probably will so continue," he said. "Because the federal government believes in a large citizen army and not in a large regular force."

He expressed his intention to ask for an Air Force at an early date. He and Capt. Blackwell, his aides, have taken aeroplane flights over the capitol grounds recently. An aeroplane was at their service in the recent western Kentucky coal miners' strike disturbance in Webster county for quick reconnaisance.

"The Kentucky National Guard is now composed of about 3,000 effective men," he said. "There are over a thousand infantry soldiers scattered from Covington to Mayfield and from Whitesburg to Livermore. The cavalry has over 500 men stationed at six strategic ponts —In Louisville over 600 artillery men drill. Various other units are scattered over the state."

MILITARY FORCE IN MIDDLESBORO

Local Unit of Organized Reserve Exists Here and Has, For Years.

Though not many Middlesboro people know it, there is an organized military unit here and has been for years. It is Company A, 399th Infantry of the 100th Division, Reserve Corps, a part of the great citizens' army.

These facts were made known today which has been designated by President Coolidge as National Defense Day.

The Organized Reserve was made possible by the National Defense Act of 1920, which provided for three units for the country's defense: The Regular Army, the National Guards and the Reserve Corps.

Though the Reserve Corps is an organized unit, ready to be called into action on emergency, as it exists now, it is a skeleton organization, having, for the most part only officers. These have authority to recruit companies of the regular military complement and, in some places, they have done so.

The local company has six officers and has authority for a latter having never been recruited. strength of 200 enlisted men, the its officers are: Capt. George Jenkins, of Corbin, Commanding officer, 1st Lieut. Dean, and 2nd Lieut. J. Colson McKeehan, of Middlesboro; Lieut. Ted Creech of Pineville, and 2nd Lieuts. Roy E. Saylor and H. W. Wright, the latter of Barbourville.

In case of emergency, Company A would begin immediate recruiting and drilling of troops which would be quartered and rationed here. The recruits would be wrawn from Bell, Harlan, and Knox counties.

The Organized Reserve which, in normal peace times is no expense whatever to the government, makes possible a much smaller standing army than would otherwise be required. Its officers attend camp for two weeks each year for drilling and special training.

Many Native Born In Australia Indicated

Boys Faced Death When Auto Ran Down Bank—Took Part In Defense Day Plan Today.

Associated Press.

JOLIET, Ill., Sept. 12—Richard Loeb will be assigned to work in the prison chair factory and Nathan Leopold in the rattan factory, Warden Whitman announced today. They will begin working tomorrow.

JOLIET, Ill., Sept. 12—Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb were routed out at 6 o'clock this morning after spending their first night at the state penitentiary to find the institution in a holiday spirit and themselves the center of interest.

The slayers of Robert Franks participated in the Defense Day program at the prison and finished some of tht formalities of the entrance of new prisoners which were discarded last night because of the late hour of their arrival.

The boys will probably not begin manual labor before Monday. The celebrated prisoners narrowly escaped death last night when their car plunged down the car tracks while the boys were handcuffed to the guards. Both were considerably unnerved after the accident.

STATE BUYS ARMY TRUCKS FOR ROAD

Supplies Bought on Economical Basis From Various Army Camps.

Associated Press.

FRANKFORT, Sept. 12.—Supplies just received by the state highway department, for road building, were reported today by W. A. Duke, superintendent of equipment.

"It would cost the state about $75,000.00 to obtain this material from private companies," hes aid. The department only paid the freight charges, he said.

The supplies, all surplus war material, formerly belonging to the regular army, were obtained as a result of Mr. Duke's recent trip to a number of camps.

Fourteen Liberty trucks from Camp Dix were included in the shipment received. Automobile parts, tools, tents, beltings, shop machinery, and brake lining, and many other supplies were testified to in shipping instruction form filed in the office.

They came from Camps Boyd, Normoyle, and Fort Sam Houston, Texas, Camp Holabird, Maryland, Fort Benning, Ga., Rock Island Arsenal, Ill., Camp Devens, Mass., and other stations.

Mr. Duke's trip was the only one ruled to be one of a strictly official business character by Attorney General Frank E. Daugherty in his recent opinion, holding three other officials' trips out of the state unworthy of state expense.

LOEB-LEOPOLD AND THE "FRIENDLY JUDGE".

By his decision Judge Caverly imposed life sentence on Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb confessed murderers of fourteen year old Robert Franks. The decision was not unexpected and the contention of the "friendly judge" advanced by the prosecution was well taken.

By his decision Judge Caverly has placed himself in the position of condoning pre-meditated first degree murder which under the law he swore to uphold is punishable by hanging. He gav his verdict in the face of every evidence that should have worked for a verdict of death. The Chicago record of cold blooded life taking is a long one and in no single instance single instance has their been a as there been a more atrocious crime committed than the taking of the life of the Franks lad. The opinion of the country, outside of a few opposed to capital punishment, was that the verdict should have been for death. The Chicago crime record demanded such a verdict.

Just how any jurist with the record of the crime and the law before him could render such a verdict passes the understanding. One thing is certain, if high priced attorneys had not played their part in the trial, Loeb and Leopold would have met their well deserved fate. The statement of the presiding judge in imposing life on the murder charge and ninety-nine years on the one of kidnaping, that no one of their youth had ever been executed in Illinois is but a weak effort to bolster up a verdict in which he refused to meet the requirements of his office. Chicago and the country at large can thank the courts, such as the one presided over by Caverly, for crime waves, willful murder and the attending disorders that follow execrable decisions like this.

THE PRESS ON THE FRANKS MURDER

Following is editorial comment on the outcome of the Franks murder case:

NEW YORK EVENING SUN—The failure of the law to impose upon Loeb and Leopold the fullest penalty that could be exacted for their crime is deeply to be regretted. When these wretches escape punishment, what is the sense of capital punishment at all? No murder more revolting than theirs, no murder done more coldly, cruelly and deliberately, was ever committed.

The sentence shakes the faith of the people in the blind equality of justice. They will not believe that any poor man who committed the crime to which Loeb and Leopold pleaded guilty—or any crime approaching its diabolic brutality—would have escaped death in any state where capital punishment exists.

BROOKLYN EAGLE—In the state of Illinois, the Judge points out, no minor has ever been sentenced to death on a plea of guilty. There will, of course, be much criticism of Judge Caverly's decision. It will be noted that other minors have been hanged in the state of Illinois and elsewhere and that these boys were of more than average intelligence and entirely conscious of the criminal quality of their act. Whether Judge Caverly has made a mistake or not will remain a matter of opinion.

KANSAS CITY JOURNAL-POST—Judge Caverly has enacted the role of the "friendly" Judge of whom one of the defendants was declared to have boasted and the theory that there is one set of laws for the rich and one for the friendless poor has received substantial support as civil propaganda gnawing at the very vitals of national confidence and pride.

In the face of Judge Caverly's decision, the death penalty never again should be inflicted in Illinois where these two wanton and merciless murderers, perpetrators of a crime too sordid to be given in detail to the public, escape the fate so justly deserved and pass from the jurisdiction of a "friendly" judge and take up the vigil of awaiting the advent of a "friendly" parole or pardoning power to end for them an incident doubtless somewhat costly and annoying.

KANSAS CITY STAR—In dealing with crime the protection of society is the first consideration. The Chicago Judge has sent two wretched murderers to prison, from which they expect a pardon in a few years. In doing this he has protected the criminals. He has failed to protect society.

CHICAGO TRIBUNE—If the punishment given the murderers meets the approval of the people of the state, their approval indicates that the retention of capital punishment by death in any case in this state is wrong. We do not see how the conscience of the state would permit any person to be sentenced to the gallows hereafter if the public approves the punishment in this case. It seems to us that the next person about whose neck an Illinois Sheriff knots a rope has a case against the people of Illinois which eternal justice would uphold. A life sentence is not a final decision of justice. We hope in this case the life sentence means imprisonment for life. But no one knows.

NEW YORK TIMES—Judge Caverly's decision sentencing Leopold and Loeb to life imprisonment instead of inflicting upon them the extreme penalty of the law for a most atrocious crime comes as a great surprise, not because of its substance, but because of the reasons given for it. It was the youth of the murderers that influenced the Judge. But this had not been prominently urged in the appeals to him to show mercy. Counsel for the criminals had introduced a vast array of testimony and hypothesis going to show that they were mentally diseased. But all this is swept aside by the Court.

Let it be said at once that such a decision for such a reason will break the charge that Leopold and Loeb escaped death solely because their families were rich enough to pay large fees to lawyers. What the lawyers did or said for the defense went for nothing. Judge Caverly simply ignored it. Had the youthful murderers been poor and friendless they would have escaped capital punishment precisely as Leopold and Loeb have escaped it. The Judge has effectually stopped the months of those who might have been inclined to complain that in Illinois there is one law for the poor and another for the rich.

PHILADELPHIA EVENING LEDGER—In itself the case was lurid, its backgrounds highly colored and shocking. Judge Caverly has sought to apply same principles of restraint to his seasoned technique. Under trying circumstances and heavy responsibilities, his determination to uphold reasoned judicial authority has been soberly manifested.

PHILADELPHIA INQUIRER—An amazing verdict is that rendered by Judge Caverly. Those two murderers Leopold and Loeb, are saved from the gallows and sentenced to prison. The result does not astonish their counsel, Mr. Darrow. It has very evidently been anticipated right along by the precious pair of criminals who have been prating about a "friendly" Judge, probably most persons who have followed the trial and the attitude of the Judge are not surprised. But it is an amazing verdict, nevertheless.

DETROIT FREE PRESS—The general public will consider it a serious failure of justice, and the more it thinks the matter over the more dissatisfied and critical it is likely to become. If the offense does not merit the extreme legal penalty it is possible to inflict, then no offense does.

MILWAUKEE JOURNAL—The sentence of Loeb and Leopold strikes another blow at the Courts. Capital punishment is the law in Illinois. No crime could be committed that calls for capital punishment if this does not. The general public is going to ask: "What's the use?" Skillful lawyers were employed who made up a most elaborate case. They saw no chance before a jury and so a plea of guilty was entered. They did not plead insanity, which must have brought the question before a jury. But they prepared a long lot of stuff which, if it was to show anything, was to show the clients not mentally responsible. Who is there who, if everything that has passed through his mind from childhood to maturity were to be told out in the open, would not seem a very queer individual?

The Judge who has decided this case says himself that no mitigation was shown. He has said that he wished there was a jury to share the responsibility, but there was no jury; the responsibility was his, and he accepts it. All the closing plea of the defense was, in fact, an expression of objection to capital punishment. But capital punishment was not on trial; it was the law and these young men knew the law when they took the life of Bobby Franks.

This is the sentence in lawless Chicago, in Chicago notorious the world over for its lawlessness. It gives an insight into the reason of that lawlessness. A shocked public will ask "Would two street boys, unknown and without ability to employ alienists and high-priced lawyers, have escaped the extreme penalty for a crime which has so horrified the country?"

MONTREAL STAR—Judge Caverly tried to paint life imprisonment as a terrific sentence. But again, it is entirely a question of its deterring effect. What will the waiting and watching Loebs and Leopolds think? They have seen the most ingenious use of hired advocacy and paid evidence rescue these confessed murderers from the chair. No poor boys could have had such a defense. Will they not believe that money has but won its first victory for its youthful worshippers? And will they not now expect money to open the prison doors to the favored pair? The Judge can advise against parole all he likes, but "money is a good soldier and will on."

The most ghastly misgiving with which many hearts will sink today will be whether Judge Caverly, in sparing these lads in their late teens from the executioner, has not sentenced many another Bobby Franks to death.

Middlesboro, Ky.,
Dear Sir:

In a recent issue of your paper you carried in the form of a letter an attack made on the editor of The Pineville Sun by one Camle Wilson, at present superintendent of the Bell County schools. The letter which purported to have been written by Mr. Wilson was a reply to charges made by the auditor of the Department of Education, at Frankfort, following an investigation of the office of the school superintendent of Bell county.

The auditor, an impartial investigator, made his report last year but the local office of the school suppressed the report and it was necessary that The Sun obtain the original copy from Frankfort in order to comply with the law and give it publication. Copies of the report were mailed to Pineville in June, 1924, but it was not until two months later that we were able to give them publication.

We know of the fairness of the Daily News and ask that the original story of the investigation be given the same publicity as the personal and highly exaggerated attack on the editor of The Sun was given.

Sincerely yours,
HERNDON J. EVANS,
Editor of The Pineville Sun.

Irregularities and lack of business methods in the management of the schools of Bell county under Camie Wilson, county school der the management superintendent, are reported at length in the audit of the schools just received here from Mellenry Rhoads, state superintendent of schools. The report, which was prepared by W. L. Trelkeld, auditor of the Department of Education, was made during the term of George Colvin, state superintendent, and covered the period from July 1, 1921 to June 30, 1923.

Superintendent Wilson's lack of business methods in his office may be the result of lack of experience and of training; the omitting of proper and accurate record of what was done by the county board may be the result of failure fully to appreciate the importance of such a record; or may be the consequence of like state of mind of the employees of his office," the report declared. The report also criticized the appearance of the office here and declared that "it does not seem a harsh judgment to hazard the opinion that through the combined efforts of the superintendent and of his two assistants, together with the proper zeal and interest, more systematic conduct and efficiency could have been attained."

The auditor objects to the method of employment of William Hays as assistant and criticizes the payment of a salary to him on the ground that the records of the Board of Education did not show that Hays ever was appointed, or that his salary was fixed or increased. Payments of traveling expenses to Superintendent Wilson in a lump sum without submission of an itemized statement also was criticized.

Subject to Criticism

"The methods by which the business of the Bell County Board of Education was conducted are legitimate subjects of criticism, as will appear from this report," Mr. Thelkeld declared. "The methods, or lack of methods, your auditor would have been glad to discuss in a frank and friendly way with the superintendent and the members of the Board of Education; but as the conference requested by your auditor, and of which the superintendent gave notice, was not held, your auditor's criticism can not be as helpful as it was his sincere and earnest wish that it should be."

In his general comment on the school system here the auditor said:

"The minutes are very defective. If the business of the Bell County Board of Education was conducted in a business way, with the care and prudence and completeness of detail which characterizes any well conducted business the minutes fail to show that the Bell County Board of Education so administered its affairs. The accuracy of this statement is established by the following specifications and copious extracts from the minutes of said board:

"Frequently the county superintendent of schools is recorded in the minutes as the chairman of the board which is contrary to the nature of the office and to the provisions of law.

"2. The county superintendent of schools who by law is made and designated secretary of the County Board of Education, according to the minutes of the board does not officiate as such officer or sign the minutes as such officer—as is required by law—but some other person regularly signs himself as secretary. At its meeting held December 10, 1921, the board took the following action: 'Motion made, seconded and carried to elect J. G. Browning secretary of the Bell County Board of Education for a term of four years at the present salary.' This was a plain violation of the law. The Act of March 22, 1920, c. 36 p. 148 provides: 'The County Superintendent of Schools shall be the executive officer, Secretary and Treasurer of the board.' Payment of any salary to Browning was an illegal disbursement.

Authority not Given

"3. The minutes do not record the authority for disbursements as is required by statutes. Section 4399A-5 provides:

"No school funds shall be appropriated out of the treasury of the school board except when so ordered by majority of the school board, and all orders appropriating money from the treasury of the county board shall be of record signed by the chairman and the secretary. Said record shall be kept in a book or books provided by the State Board of Education and shall show the amount appropriated, to whom paid and the time of appropriation, together with the names of the members who favor and oppose the appropriation written therein. Before any claim against the county board shall be paid it shall be submitted in writing, itemized and verified. (Act of March 22, 1920, c. p. 148 section 1).

"The minutes do not show that a single one of these requirements was complied with, on the contrary:

"1. The habitual phraseology is either, 'Motion made and seconded to pay the bills before the board today,' or 'Orders No.—— to—— allowed."

"2. Further the numbers of the orders allowed, as per phraseology just quoted, are often changed. The last number frequently appears to have been made by a different ink, and in some cases, the final numebr in the blank is altogether omitted; so that so far as the board is concerned, the records show only that they may have known the number of the voucher at which disbursements for the day began, but did not seem to know the number of disbursements or the number of the final disbursement.

"3. According to the teachers' payroll there were approximately one hundred teachers employed in the common rural schools of Bell County, but the minutes do not show that number of teachers was elected by the County Board of Education. If all the persons to whom the records show salaries were paid for services as teachers were employed; then many of the persons serving as teachers either were not elected and consequently were illegally paid, or they were elected and the minutes were defective in not recording the time and fact of such election.

"4. The minutes do not contain any record of the schedule of salaries.

"5. The minutes do not contain the annual budget of estimated receipts and expenditures upon the basis of which a county levy was asked of the Fiscal Court to meet requirements of said budget.

"Another characteristic of the minutes is the large amount of blank space which frequently appears between the closing of minutes and the point where the members of the board affix their signatures.

Helton Regime O. K.

"Miss Mary Anu Helton was County Superintendent of Schools during a portion of the time covered by this audit, to-wit, from July 1, 1921 to December 31, 1921. During this period due record was made of the receipts at the proper place in the financial record provided by the State Board of Education, and the various sources from which these funds were received are set forth, and the monthly summaries also of these receipts are recorded at the place provided. Such was the case also with reference to the disbursements, and the monthly recapitulation of these summaries of receipts and disbursements were kept.

"From the beginning of the administration of Camie Wilson, the present superintendent, on the first of January, 1922, no record has been made of the receipts at the place and in the manner required by law; nor were the monthly summaries of disbursements kept but only monthly recapitulations of receipts and expenditures, in which all receipts appear only in one lump sum for the respective month—there being no analysis whatever of the receipts discoverable."

Discussing the disbursements during the Wilson administration Mr. Threlkeld in his report states that "the disbursements include many vouchers given to members of the board for supplies and payments were made to the superintendent and to the employees in the superintendent's office for supplies Your auditor is not questioning the fact that these supplies were needed and that they were furnished at the market prices, but it is a practice that should be discontinued and which is prohibited by law, which says that no one is eligible for membership on the Board of Education who is interested either directly or indirectly in any contracts with the Board.

Hay's Salary Questioned

"Disbursements show that beginning with the month of January 1922 William Hays was paid $80 in January, $85, in March, April, May, June, July and August; and that in September he was paid $100 and for the months of October, November and December, 1922, he was paid $110 per month; for the months of January, February, March and April of 1923 he was paid the sum of $110 per month. The checks purported to have been given for clerical services or office work. The minutes of the board, however, do not show that Mr. Hays was ever elected or appointed clerical assistant by the board or by Superintendent Wilson. Nor do the minutes show that the board took such action increasing the salary of William Hays from $85 to $100 and subsequently from $100 to $110.

"The disbursements show, beginning with January 1, 1922, that the Board undertook to pay the Superintendent a salary of $150 per month and ordered this salary to be paid monthly in advance. Attention is called to the matter now for the reason that these checks given in payment in advance of Superintendent Wilson's salary do not state—with two exceptions—that the salary is for the month in advance in which the check is given, but contains the memorandum 'salary to date.' According to this memorandum, the Superintendent's salary appeared to be paid at the end of the month, when it actually was being paid at the beginning of the month.

Took Lump Expenses

"The disbursements also show that for every month during Mr. Wilson's administration, he paid himself the lump sum of $25 for expenses. This is contrary to section 4390-7 of Kentucky Statutes, Superintendent Wilson, when asked for receipted and itemized bills of expenses could not produce and receipted bills. He did, however, exhibit to your auditor some bills in which he attempted to set forth his expenses for each month. The first item of each of these bills was for the amount of $9.30, being expenses of the Superintendent from his home to his office and return. This item your auditor could not allow and recommends that these monthly amounts of $25 be disallowed.

"The report then gives an itemized list of "Irregularities in making disbursements." These show expenditures of amounts ranging from a few dollars up to as much as $793.50 for various things, including payment to board members and to officers, with notations such as 'minutes do not show authority to purchase," superintendent," "truant officer," member of board," etc. The list includes an expenditure of $10.25 on Check No. 122 to Henry Broughton for recording 20 deeds, with the following notation: There is no record in the Bell County Board of Education purchased 20 building sites or any number approaching 20. In fact the minutes for the years 1921, 1922, 1923 mention purchase of only three or four sites. Surely matters of such importance as the purchase of grounds for school purposes should be a matter of record. Mention is made here of this because this incident is typical of the way the Bell County Board and its employees transacted its business and made record of same."

HUNT'S DAILY LETTER

Washington— Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas thinks the Great American game of poker would provide a really democratic education for the Prince of Wales.

"The prince," says Capper, "says he wants to learn poker. That'd be fine! That's one game in which he'd learn that the king is not high."

Capper, who was recently renominated as Republican candidate for the Senate in the face of a bitter campaign by opponents who charged he had failed to stand by the president on tax revision, bonus and other administration issues, has become a real problem for Republican publicity managers.

Now that his campaign for renomination is over, Capper is keeping right on, in his public speeches and in his daily and weekly papers that have a tremendous circulation through the middle west, hammering at his idea that all is not well with agriculture despite currently better prices and pleasant political promises.

For the national G. O. P. organization now to enter Kansas with a campaign to contradict and counteract the claims of the party's own senatorial choice might be to force a large part of his following to throw their votes, on the national ticket, to LaFollette rather than Coolidge. Not a pleasant situation for the party managers, as you can see.

"It is hard to understand," says Capper, "why the east will not admit that the west—especially western agriculture—is entitled to the same consideration given eastern manufacturing, industrial and financial interests. From Wall Street complaints, it would be supposed that farmers are enemies of the Republic.

"Wall Street is now engaged because senators and members of Congress from the west refused to cut the taxes of millionaires in two.

"Manufacturing interests have not forgiven western senators who refused to accept all the Fordney-McCumber tariff bill.

"Eastern interests which demanded a $300,000,000 subsidy for a merchant marine, bitterly oppose all measures for the relief of agriculture.

"Transportation has its Esch-Cummins law. The fight the railroads are making to serve it shows how well it serves their needs.

"In the face of all this can any fair-minded citizen say western agriculture asks more than it is entitled to?"

Plain talk, that, for a Republican senatorial candidate. And difficult talk for his party colleagues managing the campaign of the national administration has the national ticket, when the national administration has combatted the very things the senator advocates and has urged and adopted the things he criticizes.

If some way could be found to cap Capper for the next three months, Chairman Butler would have one load off his mind. That Capper has the confidence and support of Kansas Republicans, he has just demonstrated in the primaries.

Capper isn't actively anti-Coolidge; he's just pro-agriculture. How to handle him, then, or handle the situation in his state without stirring up a hornet's nest and turning a bad situation into a worse one, is the big question.

Democrats are finding real pleasure in this G. O. P. perplexity as to how to handle Kansas.

For the influence of the Capper situation there, they believe, will carry over into Missouri, Iowa and Nebraska, where Capper's publications have circulation and influence.

They foresee in it a fine chance for defections from the G. O. P., to the LaFollette ticket, thereby splitting the Republican vote and giving the Dems a chance to walk away with the electors.

The Smart Costume Chooses its Accessories

Why we call them accessories is beyond comprehension. For against the simple back ground of today's frock they are the magic touch which transforms a plain dress into a charming costume.

Fortunately we are going to wear more neckwear than ever. It imparts such a dainty, becoming touch—particularly to the darker fall frock, that the woman of discriminating taste is certain to be an ardent follower of this mode.

Newer Neckwear

The cleverest novelty in neckwear is a lace collar which may be boat shaped, Bramley, Peter Pan or "V" neck, and attached to the collar a panel six or eight inches wide and long enough to reach to the bottom of the skirt. They are worn over one piece dresses, the long panel attached with a very loose tack. The result is perfectly surprising—the dress is transformed and made charmingly new beyond recognition.

Organdie collars and cuffs gaily embroidered in bright colors or bound with a contrasting color vie with lace for first place in fashio's favor. Some of the newer lace collars are composed of rows of tiny ruffles and at the neckline a tiny ribbon is run through a net band and ties, fastening the collar, in the front. Practically all the new cuffs are turned back in a modified gauntlet style.

A Surprise

Perhaps the strangest thing which happened in fashion history last season was the sudden rise to favor of the wide leather belt. Just when we thought all our costumes were to be beltless or at best have only the narrowest most inconspicuous of matching belts—the wide suede belt leaped into prominence. This fall it is to be as popular as ever—especially in tan, brown and soft green.

Jingle, Jingle

It seems as though fashion dislikes an unobstructive silence for her voturies. So now there must be a fascinating jingling and tinkling at our wrists and arms.

The Purse

The underarm bag is still the smartest. There is a slight tendency to make this bag a little narrower, but the great majority of smart bags are just the same size and shape.

For early fall the silk bag is more frequently seen. It may be of black silk trimmed with rhinestones, with a folette or with white in striking contrast. However, it is just as likely to be made of the most gorgeously hued silks you ever dreamed of. Later in the season the vogue of the leather bag predominates. For these almost any type of leather or combination is good.

For dressier occasions the soft colorful beaded bag is still with us. So pretty and artistic are the color combinations of these bags that they give a perfectly charming touch to the costume. They are equally smart on a frame or a drawstring.

Scarfs

The scarf is too becoming and graceful to be discarded lightly. So fall bids fair to see our shoulders bedecked with fascinating, daringly, colorful lengths of soft silks. At widths and any desired lengths will be worn.

Gloves

The glove, in response to the tailored mode is rather loosely mannish in cut. The gauntlet is very popular—its latest designing being a cut out pattern. However, single button wrist length gloves are quite as good.

ORGANIZE FIGHT ON PLANT PESTS

Worms, Bugs, Beetles Eating Up Vegetables—Organization to Combat.

Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Sept. 11.—Foreign insect pests and plant diseases have made such headway among vegetable crops that dwellers in large cities will probably never again see cheap vegetables unless action taken by the international organization of vegetable growers, meeting here September 15 to 20, finds a way out, the central convention committee declared in its announcement today.

The committee comprises J. S. Gardener, Lexington, state vegetable specialist, F. E. Merriman, county agent at Louisville, and J. W. Norwood, editor of the Market Growers Journal.

"A thousand or more growers and specialists from every part of the country will gather here to consider what may be done to combat the Mexican Bean beetle, the Japanese beetle, the European Corn Borer and other pests that have been imported in recent years from abroad and caused millions of dollars damage, to an industry that nets vegetable farmers nearly a half billion dollars annually," Mr. Norwood said.

"Plant experts from the agricultural college, the state and federal departments of agriculture, agricultural leaders and growers will combine to wage a nation-wide fight against threat of destruction to many vegetable crops.

"In every state, committees are now urging the growers to come to Louisville, organize more thoroughly, advocate legislation appropriating money for research and field work, and formulate plans for better and more economical marketing conditions."

The present officers of the organization, incorporated a few months ago under the laws of the district of Columbia and known as the Vegetable Growers Association of America, are:

H. F. Thompson, Arlington, Mass., president; R. H. Garrahan, Kingston, Pa., vice-president; H. H. Richardson, Cleveland, O., executive committeeman; George E. Starr, East Lansing, Mich., secretary; C. F. Peaper, Indianapolis, Ind., treasurer; M. Ernest Moore, Arlington, Mass., and M. H. Guelph, Ontario, Canada, executive committeemen.

Gov. Fields is honorary chairman for the state and Mayor Quinn of Louisville, honoray chairman for the city.

Bobbed Hair Invades Romantic Isle

Associated Press.

PAPEETE, Tahiti, Sept. —Moving pictures and radio, jazz music, motor cars and bobbed hair have crowded out the old native customs of Tahiti, and some of the romance of the South Seas would appear to be on the wane.

Time was when July 14, the anniversary of the fall of the Bastile, was the great native festival of these islands. There were singing and dancing contests among the native clans, prepared for months in advance, and the competition for real excellence was keen. This year only a few small and mediocre companies entered the contests, and interest was distinctly lacking. The principal centers of attraction were the dancing pavilions. Along the waterfront where jazz bands led the revellers in fox trots to a continous flow of warm champagne.

Cabs Replace Private Cars at Wedding

Associated Press

BERLIN, Sept. —Waiting at the church has become a custom among the horse cab drivers here whenever there is a wedding. Formerly, liveried carriages brought the bride and groom to the church, and their relatives and friends, too, came in their private vehicles, carriages or automobiles.

But in the new order of things, and the high prices generally, it is not unusual for the bride and groom themselves to take a one-horse cab or a taxi, from the bride's home to the church, and to call another conveyance after the ceremony is over. Cab drivers have spotted all the favorite churches, and by instinct appear to know the days and the hours when there is to be a wedding.

Beets for Sugar

Associated Press

GLASGOW, Sept. 12—The first of a chain of factories to extract sugar from Scotch grown sugar beets has been opened a few miles north of Nottingham. The chain will extend from Kent through Nottingham and into Perthshire, the district in which sugar beet growing has been widely developed since the war. Other factories will be erected as soon as the beet production can be guaranteed.

Blame Sleepy Cooks

Associated Press

BERLIN, Sept. — It would seem that the people of Berlin are more careless in the matter of fire risks in the early morning hours than any other time of the day. Berlin had 800 fire calls during July, and a majority were in the early morning. The fire chief says it is because people are only half awake when they stir around the kitchen getting breakfast ready.

Library Books Over Due Left on Trains

Associated Press

PASADENA, Cal., Sept. — People who have been using the Pacific Electric Railway as a medium for returning overdue books to the public library, in the future must employ other means of evading the librarian's fines.

For months the lost and found department of the railway has been returning to the library books picked up in street cars and buses. The number gradually grew until one man's time was chiefly occupied in returning books from the car barns. When railway officials noticed that no one forgot to leave any privately owned books on the cars, they came to the conclusion that they were being "worked," and announced that there would be no more books returned to the public library.

Meets in Pineville

The Woman's Missionary Society of the M. E. Church, South, had an all day meeting in Pineville Thursday at the home of Mrs. Hill Woodson. After a delicious lunch was served at noon, a business session was held. This was followed by an interesting program, Mrs. C. F. Bristow being in charge. Mrs D. Z. Gibson read the fourth chapter of the book, "The Child and America's Future," which proved an interesting study. The Bible lesson, "Stewart Service in the Home," was given by Mrs. D. G. Hinks. The missionary topic, "Flashlights From Africa" was given by Mrs. M. E. Brown and the missionary news by Mrs. C. K. Brosheer. The meeting closed with prayer by Mrs. Cooke, of Pineville. A number of Pineville ladies were present. A rising vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Woodson for her kind hospitality.

Shower for
Mrs. Cooper

One of the most elaborate events of the kind this season was the shower given for Mrs. E T. Cooper, recent bride, by the girls of the First Presbyterian Church at the home of Mrs Hugh Allen, at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

A color scheme of yellow and white was carried out in the decorations and the refreshments. Beautiful presents were presented Mrs. Cooper in a unique manner: A moon over the table contained a cupid which apparently rained down the gifts for the donor. Yellow parasols were given the guests as favors. Twenty-five guests were invited. A delicous plate lunch was served.

"JUDGMENT OF STORM" BIG FILM

(Reviewed by Frank Elliott in Motion Picture News)

"Judgment of the Storm" has every quality that goes into making a fine production. To begin with there is a real story to tell and in the telling the audience is treated to a series of episodes that are filled with dramatic T. N. T.

There is more entertainment in this picture than in several productions we've seen that cost close to the million point and once seen are soon forgotten. This picture did not cost a million dollars and does not rely on elaborate settings to put it over. It has a plot that is off the beaten path, a plot which has so much "meat" that the directory has been able to inject a punch in each reel big enough for the climax of several ordinary photoplays. In fact the thrilling situations come so thick and fast that one wonders what is going to be left for the climax and then we go hurling into a series of tense scenes that will drag the most jaded fans to the edge of the seats.

The best snow storm scenes since "Way Down East" are pictured here and if you think you have viewed blizzards, well, "you ain't seen nothin' yet!" Heart interest has been built into this feature from beginning to end. The action flows smoothly at all times and there are some scenes that will hold you in a vise-like grip, for instance the situation in which the boy meeting his mother for the first time in three years, believing her to have been abroad, finds her really to be the owner of a gambling den in which there has just occurred a murder and a suicide.

There are any number of similar big scenes. As for the cast it is a wonderful one. Lloyd Hughes is an ideal selection for the role of John Trevor and gives a fine characterization. Myrtle Steadman is most appealing as John's mother. Lucille Rickson, the little girl of yesteryear, is now a real leading lady and will win admirers through her work in this picture. George Hackathorne and Claire MacDowell also contributed effective roles.

"Land of Wonderful Dreams" Feature Comics Tomorrow

Those readers of the Daily News who remember the wonderful drawings of Winsor McCoy when at the zenith of his career he created his famous characters of Little Nemo, Flip, The Princess, Dr. Pill and others, will welcome the news that his famous series, "In the Land of Wonderful Dreams," is to be revived in this newspaper. Beginning tomorrow an installment of it will appear every Saturday as a full page feature.

There has never been a newspaper feature which gained for itself the unique place won by "In the Land of Wonderful Dreams" when it first appeared more than fifteen years ago and its creator, Winsor McCay, was recognized instantly as a master cartoonist who was also a great imaginative artist. Readers of every description from delightful children to those whose youth was the most distant of memories acclaimed it with one accord as the perfect representation, by the magic of art, of the dreams which are a part of all childhood and remain ever afterward in the memory as a treasured recollection through maturity to old age. Its splendors, its vistas of shimmering valleys brooding mountain tops, and its array of elfin people delighted the thousands. It was discontinued only when Mr. McCay, following a plan which had been constant in his mind for years, reluctantly ceased drawing it to give his entire time to editorial and political cartooning.

When "In the Land of Wonderful Dreams" appears again in this newspaper beginning tomorrow, you will be captivated at once, as its poetic beauty. Be sure and do millions of others have been, with not miss an issue of it from Satur its high quality of imagination and day to Saturday.
